FOOD WITH A VIEW OF THE GREEN

Paradise Palms Resort and Country Club may stake its claim on having one of Australia's best golf courses, but this vision expanded to dining and lifestyle experiences with the opening of Fifty Nine Restaurant & Bar in 2008.

Featuring a fresh and seasonal blend of ingredients in a menu that can only be described as modern Australian, Fifty Nine Restaurant & Bar has quickly become one of the region's popular meeting places to enjoy good food – with or without the golf.

Executive chef, Matt Dye said guests can expect to feast on an ever-changing, seasonal menu showcasing the region's best produce in a combination of contemporary dishes with traditional favourites. Add to this, a delicious breakfast menu and themed events that include a special family focus with children's entertainment on Saturday evenings.

Large timber and glass, bi-fold doors make Fifty Nine Restaurant an all-weather dining outlet offering guests the best of both worlds – indoor and outdoor dining. Inside or out, both settings are well-aspected to take in sweeping views of the mountains, greens and fairways.

Fifty Nine Restaurant & Bar is an all occasion restaurant that is as equally suited to a refreshing ale after a game of golf or an intimate dinner celebration with family and friends.

Open seven days from 7am until late, guests are invited to enjoy breakfast, lunch, dinner or a selection of snacks with an extensive wine list and drinks menu.

What's in a number? According to the team at Paradise Palms, the numerically named restaurant takes its name from the exact latitude of Paradise Palms and the magical golf score of 59 achieved on the PGA Tour by Al Geiberger, Chip Beck and David Duval and on the LPGA Tour by Annika Sorenstam.
